News from this week

Book Fair Sales

We have been overwhelmed with the number of books sold this week at our book fair. The commission that we receive has meant that we have received over £900 into our Scholastic account to spend on books. Thank you for your incredible support and for encouraging your children to have a love of reading.

Children in Need

We have not yet counted the contributions towards Children in Need at the time of writing but looking in the bucket, there seems to be lots of money which will be deposited this weekend for Children in Need. Thank you!

Anti-Bullying week

We had some very unusual sock combinations on Monday on our sock day and we talked in assembly about reaching out if you see, notice or experience any bullying. The classes have followed this up during their PRHE session this week at an age-appropriate level.

Information for next week

St Anne's Christmas card competition

We will be sending a sheet home with each child next week for them to draw a design for a Christmas card. St Anne's church would like to produce Christmas cards this year which have been drawn by children from our school. They send cards to lots of homes in the Southowram area and wanted our help with the design. As it is for the church, they have asked for a scene linked to the nativity story. Completed designs should be returned to school for us to choose some winners to forward to St Anne's.

Other Information

Reception 2023 information

A few nursery parents have requested support with their Reception application. The portal has now opened and will remain open until 15th January. You will find the application process by following this link:

<https://www.calderdale.gov.uk/v2/residents/education-and-learning/schools/admissions>

I am running a session to support parents in filling the application in on Monday 28th November at 2.15pm. Any Nursery parent can come to the session for support, but you will need an email address and a means of access to this email with you.
